A horizontal timeline with five vertical tick marks. The timeline is represented by a horizontal line with five vertical tick marks at regular intervals. The first tick mark is on the left, followed by four more tick marks towards the right. The timeline is used to indicate the sequence of events over time.

The diagram illustrates the process of creating embryos for research. It shows a single source of 'Embryonic stem cells' at the top. Below this, seven identical circular icons represent embryos, each with two eyes and a mouth. Each embryo is labeled 'Embryonic stem cells.' and has a small circular icon with 'XX' and a dot below it, labeled 'DIRTY D'. The embryos are arranged in a row, separated by vertical lines.
